

Dagney Faulk, Ph.D. is Director of Research in the Center for Business and Economic Research (CBER) at Ball State University in Muncie, IN. Her research focuses on regional economic development issues and state and local tax policy and has been published in Public Budgeting and Finance, Journal of Urban Affairs, Public Finance Review, the National Tax Journal, the Review of Regional Studies, the Journal of Urban Affairs, State and Local Government Review and State Tax Notes. She has worked on numerous Indiana-focused policy studies on a variety of topics including analysis of fixed-route bus transit, the regional distribution of state government taxes and expenditures, school choice, housing and property tax issues. She is coauthor (with Michael Hicks) of the book Local Government Consolidation in the United States (Cambria Press 2011) and co-editor (with James Connolly and Emily Wornell) of the book Vulnerable Communities: Research, Policy and Practice in Small Cities (Cornell UP 2022). She is a member of the Board of Trustees for the Midwest Public Affairs Conference (MPAC) and is President-elect of the Mid-Continent Regional Science Association. She has worked with over 50 student research assistants while at Ball State many of whom are coauthors on articles or reports, and she teaches a course on Urban Economics. Prior to joining the CBER, she was Associate Professor of Economics at Indiana University Southeast in New Albany, Indiana. She received her Ph.D. in economics from the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University.